

VEGETATION

Vegetation that grows in the aquatic environment provides food and cover for many animals that live in or near the water. It provides spawning and nursery sites for fish — two important elements in maintaining a good fishery.