

Vince and Larry are crash test dummies. When they ride in cars without safety belts and do other silly things, the safety engineers can put them back together again. We can laugh at Vince and Larry because they are dummies. But for real people, buckling up is not funny. It's the smart thing to do.

